Don't Stop Believing

Let's face it, life at Alcester-Hudson High can be a bit nerve-wracking for its students. From Chemistry tests to English semester papers, everyone has their fair share of not-so-good days at school. Even through those bad days, the students always have shared one common trait: the tendency to not give up hope. We will always get up when we are knocked down, and we will never stop believing.

Student Life

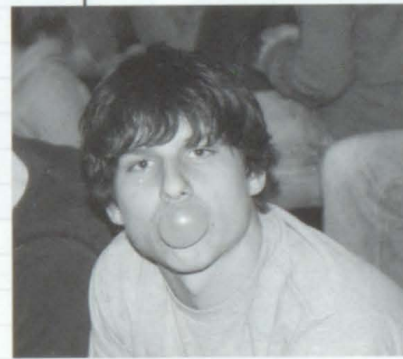

Believe in Yourself

Every school year brings new changes and memories to AHHS. The changes in technology kept us on our toes, and personal accounts on the computer were both helpful and complicated. We will remember a homecoming dance with only a few stubborn stragglers left by the end. Faces painted white to represent death made us aware of the consequences of drinking and driving. Another hunting season caused great excitement for many, and another winter brought new sledding fun and even some injuries. Weekends were spent watching Superbad, going to Butler's coffee shop, and cruising the Alcester loop. Another group of seniors left behind legacies to never be forgotten. Whether we were ready for it or not, life kept up its exciting pace for another unique year at AHHS.

Homecoming

Don't Stop The Power

Tooting his horn, Brenden Norseen dresses up for opposite sex day.

Saddling up, Chance Steen and Coach Haak get ready to ride in the Homecoming parade.

Heating up, the Cub fans watch the burning of the AH.

Chillin' during the pep rally, Stacey Childress, Jonny Moumy, Corey Haisch and Andrea Jansen listen to the rules of the game.

Streaking out, Alex Thompson and Dominic Osterloh crash the stage during their skit.

Taking in the day, King Trent Neu and Queen Stacey Childress rule over the land as the homecoming week begins.

Which year was your favorite Homecoming?

"This year because it was my last."

Chris Jervik 12th grade

"Sophomore year, because it had the best coronation."

Jade Fickbohm 12th grade

"7th grade, because our float was awesome."

Kevin Sanford 12th grade

Cooking it up

Grilling furiously, Carl Serck and Alex Merrick prepare burgers for the student body.

Ready to ride

Burning rubber, all the seniors take a break during the Homecoming heat to rest on their sweet rides.

Dance, dance, evolution

Grooving, Jessica Wegh and Lexy Schempp dance through the ages in their homecoming skit "The Evolution of Dance."

Extreme exercise

Pushing the max, the football cheerleaders demonstrate a group push-up for the pep rally crowd.

Extreme Success is the phrase that comes to mind about this year's homecoming. We won the football game 34-6. It was a perfect day for the homecoming parade with temps in the 80's.

Coronation was funny as ever and we even switched up the wacky days to the class color day, be your favorite person day, cross dress day and of course blue and gold day.

The sophomores won the school spirit award and received the party. The students ate as much breakfast pizza as we could and had the whole day to build our floats and show our school spirit.

Everyone rocked out at the homecoming dance and all the window decorations turned out great this year. The competition was tough, but the State Bank of Alcester won the Alcester award and the Hudson Manor won the Hudson award.

Chowing down, Kelly Haisch, Todd Anderson, Jon Rodriguez and Eric Tabbert snarf pizza on the day of the big game.

Freshman faces

Anticipating the parade and football game, the freshmen girls can hardly wait for the upcoming day.

Student Daily

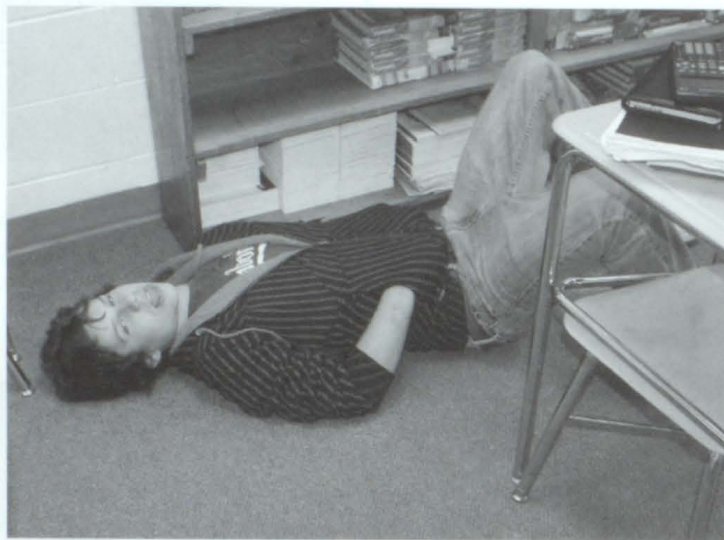

Don't Stop Showing Up

Hiding behind her jacket, Jade Fickbohm gets cover from an incoming photo.

Devouring all the food, Casey Skogland and Barry Wood enjoy Food Science.

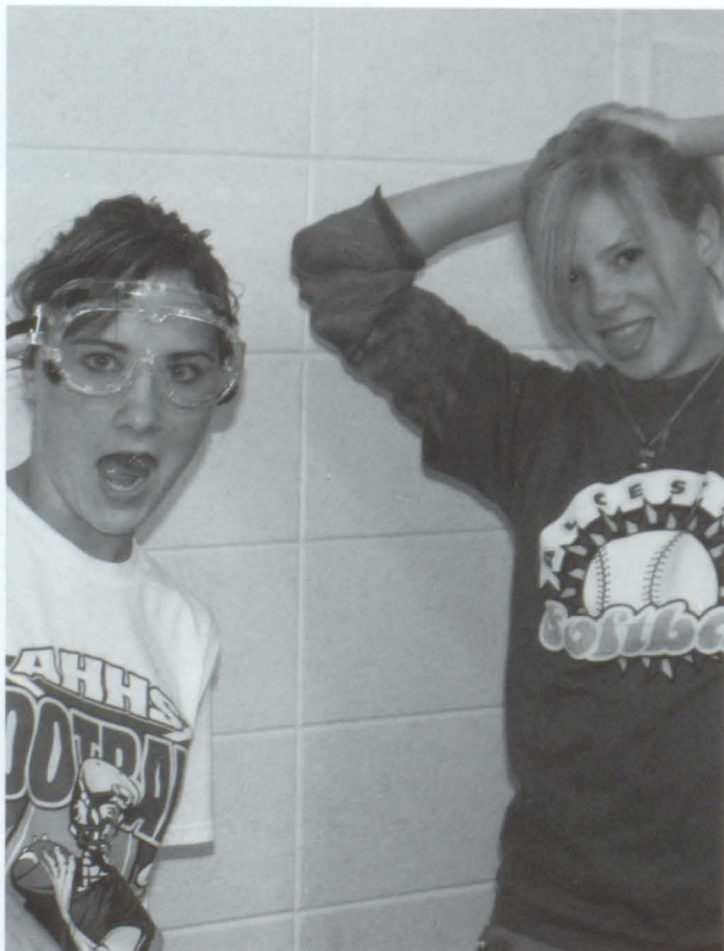

Catching some ZZZ's, Trent Neu rests up for class in class and dreams about getting an A.

Discussing plans, Kelly Haisch and Eric Anderson plot out their evening.

Flipping burgers, Joe Zweifel helps out at the barbeque.

Preparing for another crazy day in Chemistry, Stacey Childress and Kassie Nyreen throw on the goggles.

What's the funniest moment this year?

"The relay race during Homecoming Week."

Crystal McCormick 12th Grade

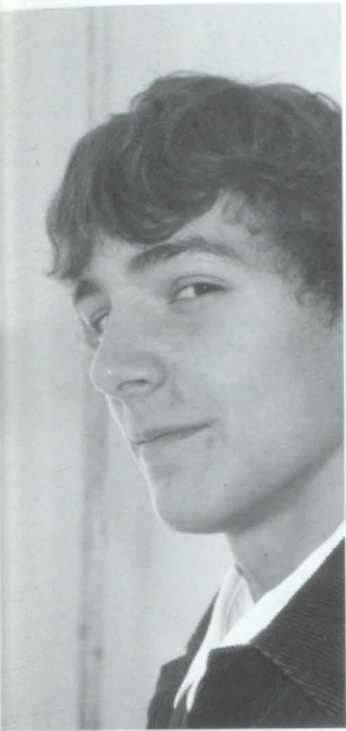

"Corey Haisch falling down the bleachers at a volleyball game."

Taylor Huber 11th Grade

"Watching Mr. Koenig run across the gym."

Jacob Dawdy 11th Grade

Eric approves

Practicing his chipper face, Eric Tabbert greets and escorts people to the Senior Citizen Thanksgiving Dinner in the gym.

What does all this mean?

Deciphering Mythology, Chris Jervik and Kurtis Braaten are actually studying in study hall.

Attending school every weekday, nine months a year, for twelve years is sometimes a hassle. Learning to accept it after awhile is a good start, but why not try to make the best of it while at it.

Don't just have fun out of school, slip a little fun into the school days. This could just be wearing your favorite polar bear boots. Sure the times to do it are not always perfect, which will result in the whole class getting a lecture for it, but it's always worth it in the end.

Whether it's eating snacks in food science, hiding from the new security cameras, waving hands to get paper towels in the bathroom, taking a nap in math class, getting locked out of the school every morning, or even walking to school from the temporary parking, life as a student always provides interesting subjects to talk about later.

Locking his car, Jeremy Jansen treks across the street from the temporary parking lot to the school.

Reading out loud

Reading a pamphlet with immense excitement, Kelsey Johannsen and Mallory Schempp point out some of their favorite pieces of the writing.

Choke him out!

Showing Alex Thompson what's up, Emily Potts puts him in a powerful headlock he'll never escape.

Thumbs Up

Serving the Thanksgiving Dinner, Dylan Christensen gives the thumbs up to show how much he enjoys helping out.

Fanatics

Don't Stop Freaking Out

Ecstatic over an electrifying game, Megan Wood whoops.

Chanting for a victory, freshmen girls scream spirit.

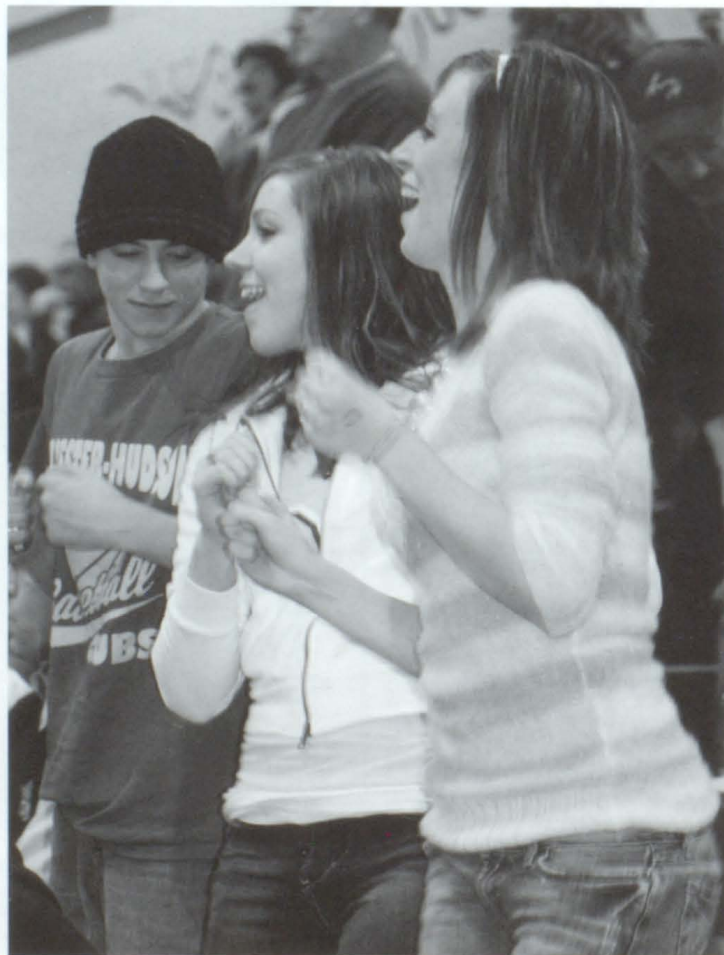

Knocking on wood, Joe Zweifel aids the team in an exciting win.

Crossing her fingers for luck, Rie Barnes helps the Cubs get another score.

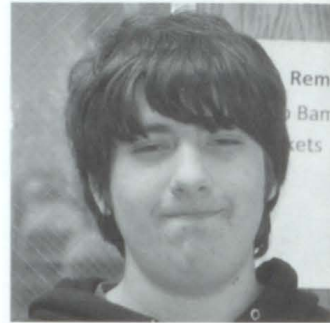

Flaunting some Cub pride, Kelsey Johannsen, Andrea Jansen, Kayla Halverson, Alex Thompson, Carl Serck and Alex Merrick go blue.

Busting a move, Casey Skoglund, Emily Beeler and Shelby Smith dance for a victory.

What was the most outrageous game moment this year?

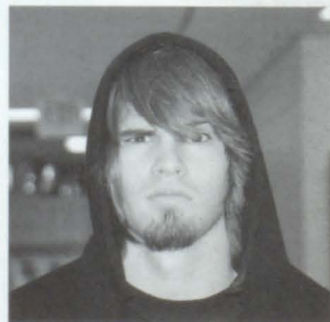

"When we won the really close game against Canton."

Damian Schouten, 10th

"When Eric made that three-pointer against Centerville but they said he travelled."

Beth Gustner, 9th

"When Kelly and I got the same injury one play after another."

Dominic Osterloh, 12th

Stand up and clap your hands!
Leading the the crowd in a time out cheer, Lindsey Schempp tries to persuade Jonny Moumy to shake and shimmy.

Turmoil of tie-dye
Flashing their coordinated tie-dye looks, Stefanie Zemanek, Carmen Borns, Emily VerMulm, Halee Lokken and Chelsea Sommervold have fun with Homecoming week.

to display AHHS support, filling section "L" and creating a roar when the Merricks, Serck and Oberg battled.

The new concept of "Spirit Week" rocked the walls during mid-winter tedium with Camo and Dress Like It's July days.

Pep rallies had kids blowing cotton balls across the floor, swapping LifeSavers with toothpicks and walking on eggshells. A year of Cub spirit shone through.

Two point games, state champions, records broken and muddy football turf, fans went wild with enthusiasm for AHHS in a sea of blue and gold.

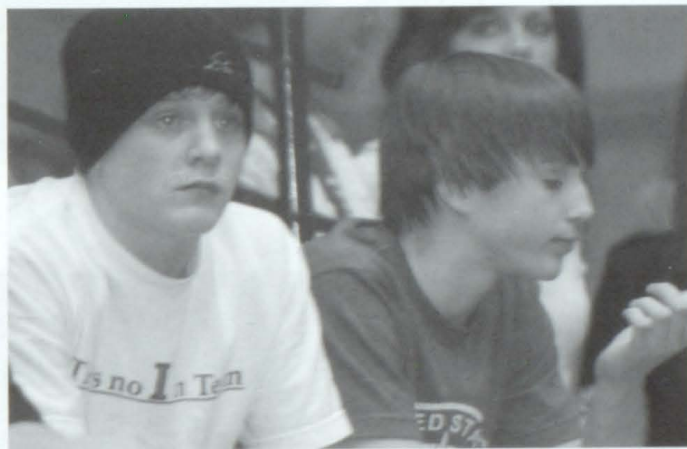

Students cooled down the atmosphere and pumped up the spirit with changing up chants with the seniors' impromptu "We Rule!" and the junior high helping out the cheerleaders with crossed fingers, hoping for a free-throw feat of triumph. Five wrestlers made the trip to state, as fans showed up Excitement bounces off of the court and onto Trent Neu's, Jeremy Jansen's, Eric Tabbert's and Matt Schempp's smiles in the stands.

Rock on!
Bringing some classic rock-n-roll spirit to the stands, Alex Thompson pumps up his fellow fans.

Tick, tick, tick...
Painfully waiting for the state finals to begin, Derrick Lundberg and Lance Merrick kill time.

What the...?
Baffled by a lousy call, Angie Hazel and Julia Brown show their outrage.

Musical Nunsense

Taking a break from dancing, Sister Leo (Lindsey Schempp) kneels and prays.

As Sister Amnesia brings out her puppet, Sisters Hubert (Julia Sundstrom) and Robert Anne (Lexy Schempp) give their approval to move on with the song.

Top Row: (R-L) Lindsey Schempp, Kelsey Johannsen, Julia Sundstrom Front Row: Leah Rommereim, Sarah Hasich, Dan Webber.

Director Jeanne Delzer, Kelsey Johannsen and Director Karla Martin.

Repeating each line, Dan Webber memorizes his part.

Falling from her stool after using RUSH, Reverend Mother Regina (Kelsey Johannsen) thinks she's pregnant.

What is your favorite part being behind the scenes?

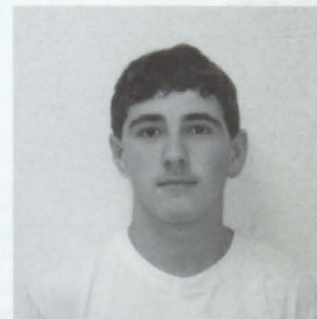

Being with Mrs. Delzer.

Joe Zweifel, Junior

My favorite part was working on the set, because I got to spray paint.

Waylon Sitting Crow, Junior

I liked messing with the lights and falling off the ladder.

Darrell Oberg, Senior

Are you ok?

Concerned for the parish, Father Myopia (Dan Webber) watches over his flock.

Dancing is the way I pray

Practicing her dance routine, Sister Leo (Lindsey Schempp) wishes she was wearing a tutu.

As the lights dimmed and the curtain opened, many new faces skimmed the crowd. The cast of the musical Nunsense consisted of two veterans, Lindsey Schempp and Kelsey Johannsen. Dan Webber was the only senior to make the cut, and Sarah Haisch, Leah Rommereim and Lexy Schempp were newcomers to the stage. Although the cast was inexperienced, the practices went well.

By opening night, the cast was prepared to perform. With a few minor mishaps, the show went smoothly. With rookie directors Ms. Delzer and Ms. Martin, Nunsense was a brand new experience. The cast was smaller than past productions and was moved to the High School. Overall, Nunsense was a huge success and was well liked by the audience.

Looking over the cookbook they designed, Sister Hubert (Julia Sundstrom) tries to convince Mother Regina (Kelsey Johannsen) to do her pope impression.

Talking with the puppet

Fighting her alter-ego, Sister Amnesia (Leah Rommereim) sings a duet to the crowd with her puppet.

Help me Obi-Won Kanobi!

Using her wimple as entertainment, Sister Robert Anne (Lexy Schempp) impersonates characters such as Heidi, Pippi Longstockings, Princess Leia and Audrey Hepburn.

Watching from behind the stage

Touching up Lindsey Schempp's makeup, stage manager Mallory Schempp gets everything in order for the big night.

Prom Don't Stop the Night

Looking debonair, seniors Todd Anderson, Corey Haisch and Eric Tabbert smile..

Moving to Soulja Boy, seniors Stacey Childress and Kevin Sanford dance.

Toasting to a good evening, junior Angie Hazel and senior Trent Neu drink lemonade during the banquet.

King Todd Anderson and Queen Cassandra Nyreen

Group dance, juniors Kelsey Johannsen, Andrea Jansen, and Jacob Dawdy show their moves.

What was your favorite song to dance to?

"All myLife, because Chad requested it!"

Tosha Inhofer, 12th

"Cupid Shuffle is the best!"

Waylon Sitting Crow, 11th

"Nirvana, because I got to mashpit and knock Dan to the ground."

Alex Thompson, 12th

All muscle!

Showing off, senior Carl Serck flaunts his biceps.

Show me the money!

Betting it all, junior Jessica Koenig, senior Perry Sitting Crow and sophomore Damian Schouten play poker.

21!

Trying to reach 21 isn't hard for juniors Matt Schempp, Waylon Sitting Crow, and Mallory Schempp as they play Black Jack.

Arabian Nights was the theme of Prom 2008. Finally, everyone was pleased to have the perfect weather that we had all hoped for. After the week long threat of snow the sunny day was a nice change. Everything started with the banquet where the juniors told prophecies about the seniors and Kelsey Johannsen sang "Open Arms." The grand march was magical, with lanterns lighting the walkway as the couples glided down. Then with the spotlight on them Todd Anderson and Kassie Nyreen were crowned king and queen. After what seemed like hours of pictures the students took to the dance floor. After the dance, the students enjoyed a variety of activities including casino games, inflatables and Xbox. The night ended with prizes being awarded.

Touch down pass!

Preparing for a throw, senior Jonny Moumy gets into the football inflatable.

Joking around, senior Chelsea Sommervold, and juniors Halee Lokken and Stefanie Zemanek rock out on the dance floor.

Two points!

Practicing her jump shot, junior Kayla Halverson plays on the inflatable basketball hoop.

Graduation

Don't Stop Remembering

Practicing the ceremony, seniors pretend to move their tassels.

Pumped to be graduating, Alex Merrick and Jeremy Jansen celebrate.

Looking back at memories, Stacey Childress and Jade Fickbohm share a laugh.

Happy to be finished, Chris Jervik cherishes the day.

"What lies behind us and what lies ahead of us are small matters compared to what lies within us."
-AHHS graduating class of '08

Feeling exuberant, Perry Sitting Crow receives his diploma from school board representative Steve Rommereim.

What's the one thing you'll miss most about high school?

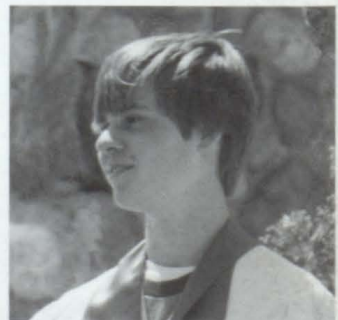

"The chicken ala king!"

Kurtis Braaten, AHHS alum

"Not having a routine every day and knowing what I'm going to do."

Kassie Nyreen, AHHS alum

"Having a place to go every day and now there's nothing."

Dan Havlin, AHHS alum

"A change in my life..."

Reading his Ministerial Scholarship winning essay, Curtis Nielsen speaks at Baccalaureate.

A monumental moment

Hoping his diploma's signed, Jonny Moumy pauses for the camera flash.

Years of playground scrapes, kickball at recess, junior high dances and countless freezing football games led up to the weepy and joyful day of graduation for the seniors.

Baccalaureate presented the students with blessings of a successful life from Pastor Cory Grimm.

Honor guards Kelly Haisch, Angie Hazel, Jon Rodriguez and Andrea Jansen led the smiling seniors during the processional.

Crystal McCormick led the class in a prayer and Kassie Nyreen reminisced of half-dead birds and late nights downtown.

Bringing tears to their eyes, Tosha Inhofer presented a slideshow of families and friends. Finally, after ages of sleepovers and study halls, the time came that Mrs. Haisch announced them the newest AHHS alumni, the class of 2008.

Showing the love, Alex Thompson relishes a hug.

There's something in my eye...

Wiping a tear, or maybe just having an allergic reaction, Kevin Sanford receives congratulations after the ceremony.

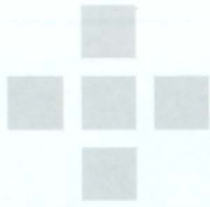

Don't let me fall!

Lending a hand, honor guard Kelly Haisch offers Crystal McCormick some balance the during recessional.

Hearts of champions

Raising their hands, Todd Anderson, Eric Tabbert and Carl Serck hoot and holler for their undefeated JH football season.

Academics and Organizations

Believe You Can Achieve

In between the freezing football games and the enchanting Prom night, classes fit in. Trying not to drool on our textbooks, we also found time to take a break and have some fun. The newly founded Spanish Club members learned salsa dancing; under a new advisor, the FFA kids hosted an Ag Olympics; FCCLAers kept kids healthy with "Take a Hike"; senior boys in Oral Interp were "Superior" as the Three Musketeers; the Quiz Bowl brainiacs hosted a "non-conference" conference QB and the National Honor Society raised sugar levels. Activities kept us sane as we broke pencil after pencil in Geometry, rubbed our pink erasers to nubs in Chemistry, and memorized lines in Macbeth and Much Ado About Nothing. Without the four minute break between classes, who knows if we would have made it to the hot, sticky relief of May.

Shelby Smith, 11:

"Mrs. Walsh taught me to live with dignity."

Darrell Oberg, 12:
"To spell Renaissance."

Academics

Don't stop learning

A little variation has stuck AHHS this year with some brand new classes. Science buff Mr. Broadwell teaches students a little something about the depths of space in his Astronomy class, not only teaching that but throwing in a remixed Ecology class. Mrs. Larsen puts students in the know with some home decoration skills with a class called Housing.

Classes don't have to be new additions to be exciting. An old classic, Advanced Chemistry had a horrifying climax when acid exploded on Carl Sereck's hand, luckily it was nothing a band-aid couldn't help. If that isn't an exciting education, nothing is!

In the revamped Ecology, Mr. Broadwell and students journeyed down to the Brule to observe the living creatures of the water. One select student met his match by tripping right into the thick mud.

Aside from doing homework, which could happen any day at any given time, there's always a chance someone could actually learn something.

Jade Fickbohm and Stacey Childress

Publishing

Don't Stop Making Deadline

The quest to develop the perfect yearbook and put out a wonderful paper every month is not an easy task. This year the publishing team consisted of only one returning member and six new faces. Jeremy Jansen was the editor of both the Bear Facts and The Cubette which hasn't happened in years. The small group also did a few in class projects including an article on a Christmas photo and a one dollar project, which made things interesting and different for the class. Generosity was in the journalists spirit this year when they decided to pay for the quiz bowl team's meals at the home meet with yearbook funds. Filling the candy machine is something that many students probably see the publishers doing often, which is how they raise money for the yearbook. Candy was also purchased in Advisor Walsh's room which improved candy sales.

Graphic Design

Don't Stop Designing

News and announcements are what gives the Graphic Design members a hard task. Along with Channel 45 they also design the Internet and Intranet where "Don't Pull, Piggy!" was a highlighted joke for the majority of the year. They were also a fixture at almost all of the home athletic events in order to get pictures for Channel 45. One project they started this year was to ask the teachers what their favorite childrens books were to promote new library books. Tosha Inhofer and Kayla Halverson were in charge of creating the slideshow for graduation. They came up with the idea to let each senior pick a song for their portion of the show.

What am I doing?

Knowing it all, Joe Zweifel puts in his two cents about the song while Karen Green and Taylor Huber keep the music going.

Kelsey Johannsen, 11th:
"I can't talk well, but I feel better about myself when I sing."

Chorus

Don't Stop Singin'

Chorus has changed drastically this year. The changes are brought by new music teacher Karla Martin. Her changes have been well liked by the chorus students.

The variety of music has been upped, with students getting more freedom on what they can sing. The music students also get to put on the annual Zip Bam Zinger, which has been completely overhauled with a Disney theme. Ms. Martin wanted to kick the boring contest music of past Zip Bam Zingers and replace it with fun music. At contest the chorus received a 2+.

Everyone in chorus agrees their year in music has been a fun one.

Showing off
Reaching her highest pitch possible, Jessica Koenig puts her voice to the maximum threshold.

Showing off his musical talent, Damian Schouten plays the trumpet with Emily Schreur, Kelby Van Wyk and Alyce Johnson.

Jam session

Rocking out, Adam Hughes jams on the guitar with Jakob Webber who is getting funky on the bass.

Band

Don't Stop the Music

Unlike past years with one band teacher and one chorus teacher, this year Karla Martin took on both duties. Even with all the extra stress she kept her cool and the music flowing.

Band took part in several events this year. The Dakota Days Parade was a very exciting time among band members. The Christmas concert was brought back to the high school and Karla Martin thought it was an excellent move. At contest, the band received a 2 rating.

The band members are a young group of students but the whole band thinks they have great potential to be an even better band in the fall.

FCCLA

Don't Stop Leading

Busy as ever sums up the FCCLA program this year. From community programs to national ones, all members in 8-12th grades have been helping out the cause. With an outstanding Halloween Carnival, Senior Citizen's Dinner and Reading Program in our community, the AHHS chapter was more than happy to host this year's District 4 meeting where Kelby Van Wyk and Lexi Liston both earned District Chair responsibilities.

Angie Hazel and newly elected Van Wyk hold state positions and everyone had their hands full with national programs like Take a Hike, The Breakfast Club, Smile Week and the Career Wax Museum. The members also raised $350 dollars for a National Outreach Program. FCCLA members are more than happy with their accomplishments this year, especially with 89% going to state, and would happily welcome new members.

FFA

Don't Stop Milking

Not unlike the FCCLA the FFA has been up to their necks in different activities. Jessica Ronning and Leah Romerein attended the national convention in Indianapolis, IN. Fruit sales sored as usual and FFA week was a complete success, with FFA Olympic days and the Greenhand project.

Around the community the FFA program raked leaves for senior citizens, put on Ag-storytime, sponsored a Food Drive, in which the senior class won, donated fruit to the Alcester and Hudson senior centers and presented agricultural lessons to the elementary students to boost interest.

The program received two state FFA degrees, which were awarded to Corey Haisch and Rebecca Lykken. Jason Vreugdenhil and Emily Schreur also submitted state proficiency awards.

Don't worry though it's not all work and no play. The members went bowling twice this year and had a few different parties to take the edge off.

Showing approval, Jane Walsh takes time to let out a smile at the community quiz bowl.

Quiz Bowl

Don't Stop Being Nerdy

Stretching minds and bursting brains, quiz bowl tested members of AHHS as always. With nine members the quiz bowl was able to make a few different team selections. This year was special though, because AHHS was able to not only put on their Community Quiz Bowl, but to lay the stepping stones for a possible Tri-Vally Conference quiz bowl with a small four team quiz bowl at AHHS.

With great senior leadership from captain Jeremy Jansen the Cubs were able to place well at the quiz bowl meets and set a great example for a sturdy underclass. Everyone was a key tool to the team and no one person tried to control the meet, that is what has helped the Cubs this season.

What to do

Pondering the question, Mallory Schempp thinks over the answer.

Who's up

Picking the team, Tim Rhead designates which teams is up next while reading for the AHHS quiz bowl meet.

Completely puzzled

Showing a weakness, Kelly Haisch and Lexy Schempp are completely baffled over their question.

What to do

Talking it over, Alex Merrick and Julia Brown discuss which answer to choose during the AHHS quiz bowl meet.

Honors

Don't Stop the Sagacity

Brains, trains, and automobiles. At AHHS this year academics beamed through the halls. With a great Student Council and a solid National Honor Society the school had no choice but to follow with 1/3 of the student body on the Academic Honor Roll.

With a horde of unique students throughout the classes scholarship committees were challenged to sift through the applicants to choose the best one. It wasn't all serious study time this year though, the honor roll recipients did have some fun. The teachers provided not only an ice cream social for the students but also an academic breakfast to help them start their day off right.

The year capped off with a bevy of students receiving a bevy of scholarships. Eric Tabbert, Emily Beeler, and Corey Haisch even received scholastic and athletic awards from our nation's military.

Oral Interp

Don't stop talking to walk

The oral interp team had an amazing season this year. New members were freshmen Sarah Haisch and Kelby Van Wyk, sophomores Jessica Ronning and Leah Rommereim, and seniors Corey Haisch, Dominic Osterloh, Alex Merrick and Carl Serck. Returning was junior Kelsey Johannsen.

With the move to divison B, the team was a little apprehensive of the future, but the oral interpers brought the district trophy home and sent six oral interpers to the state competition in Huron. State qualifiers were Haisch, Johannsen, Osterloh, Merrick and Serck. Three of the categories came home with superiors: Haisch, Osterloh, Merrick, Serck in Readers Theatre; Johannsen and Osterloh in Duet; Osterloh in Humorous; and Johannsen received an excellent in Serious Prose. Even with the weather and the interesting ride home resulting in a trip into the ditch, the oral interpers arrived home safely with their trophies held proudly in their hands and memories they will never forget.

Believe You Can Win

From devastating losses to tear jerking wins, touchdowns to breakdowns, sweat to blood, the Cubs have led us to victory. Five spectacular football wins, eleven stunning volleyball victories, ten plus win season in girls basketball with an appearance in the second round of districts. A boys basketball season with an unbelievable amount of games coming down to the wire, a wrestling season with five state qualifiers and three place winners capping off with a student's second state championship.

With all of the sporting seasons having a spectacular year, the Cubs and fans were ecstatic. Emotions are building and the anticipation for next year is out of control, just hoping that they can top the amazing achievements our small school accomplished in 2007-2008 school year.

Sports

Volleyball

Don't Stop Hitting

Even with senior Rebecca Lykken out with an injury, the volleyball players sacrificed their bodies every game and had a remarkable season. One memorable match was with Viborg Vikings during the second round of the Tri-Valley Tournament. Losing 0-2 in the beginning of the match, the Cubs reflected defeat in their eyes. The game was close to ending, but the Cubs decided to dig deep to win.

With every ounce of energy and determination in their tired bodies the Cubs inched the Vikings in the third game 25-23. In the fourth game the Cubs trampled them 25-13. The match was leaning in our favor but the Cubs had to fight to win it. Putting the crowd on their tip-toes the Cubs won the final game 15-12 and advanced to the championship. A night to remember in 2007.

Cross Country

Don't Stop Running!

The team was riding down the highway chatting and expecting another hard day of running at the Parker-Marion meet. Then they arrived and were astonished to find a completely empty golf course.

That is just one of the memories frozen in the team's mind. Due to a scheduling glitch, the AHHS cross country team had showed up one day early. In addition to going to a meet on the wrong day, there were also many new jokes told and new victories to celebrate. In all the meets, the team had many placings including Keith Berg's JV first place.

Senior Eric Beeler and freshmen Berg and Sarah Haisch later continued their season, after placing at regions, at the meet in Huron. Good job on another successful and definitely memorable year!

Football

Don't Stop Bashing Heads

"Success is what we are looking for, we'll win without a doubt." The football players started the season showing their dedication with 4-5 hour practices during the last week of summer. But the work paid off with a record of 5-4. The Cubs played Centerville in what was considered the muddiest football game of the year. Not a single uniform was still white after that game. Minor injuries occurred when

Todd Anderson broke a vertebrae and Dominic Osterloh and Kelly Haisch injured their knees within a minute of each other. All-Conference players Carl Serck, Osterloh, Trent Neu, Alex Merrick and Alex Thompson with honorable mention Kevin Sanford and Eric Tabbert, led the team to the first round of playoffs, for the first time in two years.

Cheerleading

Don't Stop the Spirit!

Spring, fall and winter the cheerleaders are always cheering. This year with three squads instead of the usual four. The boys and girls basketball squads joined so it was double the cheering for those squads. The wrestling squad was led by lone Senior Kassie Nyreen. A major improvement the squads worked on this year was stunting. The wrestling squad did their first stunting in years with a basic lift. The basketball squad conquered the extended butt sit, the liberty and a fall forward spring up lift. Cheer camps were organized for elementary students, and the cheerleaders made up the choreography and dances. For the second year in a row there was a major turnout. At seasons end, the cheerleaders cheered at the Hudson Healthcare.

Boys Basketball

Don't Stop the Shots

A new basketball coach, a new lineup, and a set of new plays. The boys basketball team had a year of new experiences. Returning was Trent Neu, the one lone starter from last year. The team was inexperienced, but came out strong with a nail biting win over Parker. After the big game, the schedule got tough but the Cubs stayed with many teams.

After two years as the head coach, Josh Hofer resigned. Replacing him was Brent Ripperda, who brought a new style of play to the team. In a streak of four games, the Cubs lost by a total of ten points. Ending their high school basketball careers, four seniors had an impressive last game as the Cubs lost to Centerville.

Wrestling

Don't Stop Grappling

The wrestling season ended with five wrestlers in the state tournament. The roster was full of experience with seven seniors leading the team. The Cubs ended with a 17-9 dual record. Alex Merrick and Carl Serck were first place winners at districts. Three records were broken for most wins in a season and in a career by Serck, and most career escapes by Merrick.

Coming out of districts, Nine wrestlers made it to regions. Out of the nine, five made in to the state wrestling meet. Along with Carl Serck and Darrell Oberg, three Merricks made it to the state tournament. Levi Merrick placed sixth, and his brother Alex placed fourth. Winning the championship for the second year in a row, Carl Serck won the 152 pound bracket.

Girls Basketball

Don't Stop the Momentum

They shove, hit and tackle others to the floor every game. They're the toughest people in our school, and they're girls. For the first time in six years, the girls basketball team had a winning season by losing only ten games out of the twenty game season. Starting out the season with two a day practices for a week, the girls found out soon that if they wanted to win, they would have to work hard and learn to work together.

One great memory from the season was when junior Julia Brown drank a highly caffeinated energy drink before a game and nearly passed out at the end of the game, teaching herself and the team a lesson. The girls placed fourth in the Tri-Valley tournament along with making it to the second round of districts, the first time since 1984. With all of this energy and success, let's hope for a winning season next year.

Track

Don't Stop Turning Left

Out with the old in with the new was the story of this season in track. Only three senior runners participated leaving it to younger runners to help carry the load. In fact, six of the ten members of girls team were freshmen. 2008 was also the first year AHHS track participated at the B level.

Track was also fun with the boys wearing their throw back uniforms and winning the 4X4 at Conference. The greatest feat of the season was three relays going to State: the girls and boys 4X8 with Sarah Haisch, Lexi Liston, Emily Schreur, and Jessica Wegh with alt. Lexy Schempp and Eric Beeler, Corey Haisch, Kelly Beeler, Corey Haisch, Kelly Skoglund; and the 1600 relay with Todd Anderson, Matt Schempp, Kelly Haisch, and Eric Beeler.

With cold weather and surprise snow storms delaying the season, golfers were anxious to swing their clubs. Finally the weather cleared with beautiful days for golfing.

Coach Bill Koenig could not believe how much fun every member of the golf team was to work with this year due to their skills and diligence. Seniors Trent Neu and Carl Serck led the boys team with juniors

Lindsey Schempp, Taylor Huber and Julia Brown leading the girls team. Neu and the girls varsity team made up of Brown, Huber, Schempp and sophomore Leah Rommereim made it to State his year. The girls team receiving second at regions and all going to State was a first for AHHS.

Ready to drive

Preparing to destroy a golf ball, junior Julia Brown focuses her attention on the green.

"Golf has been good this year, weather could be better though. All the golfers have good attitudes and golfing is on the rise."

In the hole
Reaching for a well placed golf ball, senior Trent Neu grabs yet another great shot.

Powered up
Centering all her power into one drive, junior Taylor Huber is milliseconds away from dominating a ball across the course.

Chipped off
Aiming for the perfect chip, freshman DJ Schouten tries not to disappoint his fans.

What should we do?
Choosing which hole to start with plagues sophomores Damian Schouten and Leah Rommereim as they begin a round of golf.

Playing with a smile
Trying to keep fun in her game, sophomore Michelle Havlin swings with joy.

Wrestling

Casey Reihe, Derek Schuller, Rick Heiman.

Let's get ready to rumble!
Pouncing on his opponent, eighth grader
Derrick Lundberg gets ready for a win.

Don't give up!
Fighting until the end, freshman Derek Schuller tries to get a reversal on his competitor.

Golf

Brrrrr!

Freezing down to their bones, freshmen Nathan Johnson, Andrew Braaten, and Casey Skoglund discuss golfing strategies.

Tap, tap, tap it in!
Making sure he is perfectly aligned with the ball, eighth grader Travis Terpstra gets ready to putt.

Football

Back Row: Adam Hughes, Waylon Sitting Crow, and Brenden Norseen. Front Row: Nathan Johnson, Dylan Kratochvil, Barry Wood, Derek Schuller, Jerry Morelos, and Casey Skoglund.

Hold on tight!
Grabbing for the ball, junior Brenden Norseen and sophomores Eric Anderson and Donald Hermanson are not afraid to fight.

Down, set, HUT!
Showing the Viborg Vikings their game faces, the team gets ready to play some hard defense.

Volleyball

We can do it!
Trying to relax the team, freshman Beth Gustner tells a joke to lighten the mood.

I got it!
Keeping her arms flat as a pancake, sophomore Leah Rommereim gets ready to pass the ball.

Girls Basketball

Hit me, I'm open!
Posting up during a long and grueling game, freshman Shaina Hummel yells for the ball.

Defense wins!
Standing their ground, freshmen Alshley Hanzlik and Lexy Schempp start a zone defense.

Boys Basketball

Listen up!
Hanging on every word their coach is saying, the team prepares for the second half of the game.

Pushing it to the limit!
Keeping his eye on the opponent, Tyler Tabbert gets ready to strike.

Classes

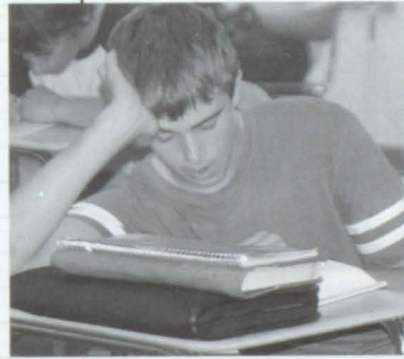

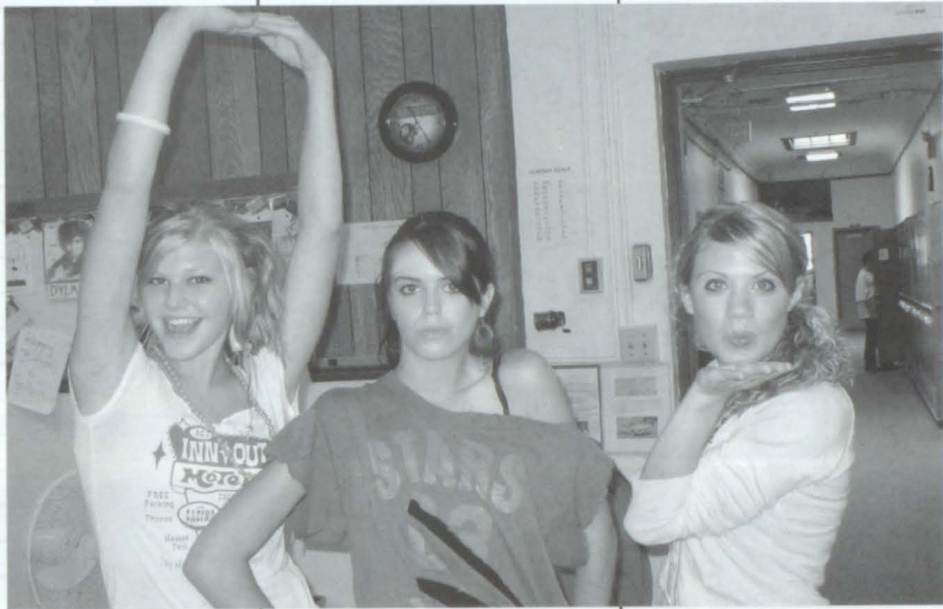

Believe You Can Grow

Seventh graders adjust to junior high life by running to each class, while the 8th graders start to anticipate next year. The freshmen class upgrades to harder classes and sophomores live more stressful lives. Juniors dread the ACT's, while the Senior class can't wait to get out. New security cameras and slide-key locks were installed and pigs were dissected in Anatomy and Physiology. Students adjusted to having no computers working in school. Eggs were thrown in English II and the Ecology class took a field trip to Brule Creek. An unexplainable odor was smelled in the sophomore hallway. Our cinnamon sugar and napkins were taken from the lunchroom, along with our bean bags in the library. What goes on inside these walls will be memories for the rest of our lives.

Things You Don't Know

Trent Neu is a semi-professional hunter. He cruises in his Bonneville all the time in search of anything from squirrels to rabbits and pheasants to cats. "I know what you're thinking. How could I shoot a cat, but check the manual. If they're obviously wild, they're free game." So watch out on the back roads for sharp shooting Trent Neu.

"You can't exactly tell by this picture but my right ear comes to a point," said Carl Serck. Carl is actually descended from an elf. "My uncle is half elf and my grandma really likes to make cookies. So the trait is pretty fluent throughout my family." It's pretty obvious, I mean come on Serck Construction company? It's just a cover up.

As another year comes to a close, it is time we move on with our lives to further play out roles in society. Although we may forget the majority our time spent here, we will all have our own memories about Alcester-Hudson.

The days were long and tedious, with a never-ending spree of homework and note-taking, but in the end, it all seems worth it.

The school not only pushed us to our limits,

but it tested our abilities and challenged us in the best way: to prove ourselves not only in the short run, but to prepare us for the rest of our lives.
